Mimos plans sub-RMI,000 PC

MALAYSIANS in the near future will be able to own a PC at a cost of less than RM1,000 when local research and development company, Mimos starts to commercialise its own version of a Tablet PC.

Mimos chief executive Datuk Abdul Wahab Abdullah said the Tablet PC was specially designed for innovative and mobile learning including for the purpose of teaching and learning in school.

"Not only are we able to reduce price, this tool (Tablet PC) can help train the community on how to use the computer in a much more friendly way," he said in his speech during the opening ceremony of the Cyber Development Corps Meeting and Workshop entitled "Earth ITernity" last week.

He said regular features such Bluetooth, USB connection and other standard features will be offered on the Tablet PC.

However, he did not say exactly when it will be on the market. — Bernama
